- Ⓣ A visit charge of £15 (VAT will be added) will be made when the telephone is delivered (purchase or rental) and no other chargeable work is carried out.
- Ⓣ The rental terms are available at the charges quoted only to customers whose telephone exchange line is charged for at 'other than business line' rental.
- Ⓣ If your existing telephones are not "new style" plug and socket you should ask for a conversion – see charges overleaf.
- Ⓣ The terms and charges in this leaflet are valid until 30th June 1987 and thereafter may be amended by British Telecom at any time.

EXCHANGE LINE CHARGES

Exchange Lines (without telephone)	Quarterly Rental	Connection Charges
		Takeover of exchange line	New Customer	Removing Customer
Residential – Exclusive	£13.95	£15.00*	£95.00*	£80.00*

(VAT will be added)

*These charges may be reduced in certain circumstances.

CONVERSION

The telephones listed overleaf are fitted with plugs and designed to fit the British Telecom "new style" sockets.

If your existing telephones are not new style plug and socket, you should ask for a conversion to be carried out when you order your new telephone(s).

The charge will be £10 for converting each point on an exchange line plus a visit charge of £15, which may be waived if other chargeable work is carried out at the time of conversion. VAT will be added.

EXTENSION CHARGES

Ⓣ If you require British Telecom to install new extension phone sockets the charge will be £25 for each extension phone socket plus a visit charge of £15. These charges include the replacement of any British Telecom rented telephones which are on the associated exchange line. VAT will be added.

In addition, if the existing main installation is hardwired or connected to old style sockets, then these will need to be converted at a charge of £10 for each point converted.

Ⓣ From 1st December 1986 you have been able to install your own extension sockets using an approved kit, provided your exchange line point has been converted to a new style master socket. Only British Telecom can convert the master socket – for charges see the section marked Conversion.

British Telecom supplies a range of approved kits, from complete kits to install 1 and 2 sockets to extra cleats to secure the cable to the wall or skirting board. You can install an extra socket from as little as £9.95. An added bonus is that if anything goes wrong with a BT kit over the years, a BT engineer can call to fix it with the cost depending on how long it takes. (Kits are available from your local British Telecom Sales Office or from BT Shops and other high street stockists).

FOR INFORMATION

Ⓣ British Telecom offers a maintenance service for purchased telephones on a quarterly charge basis.

Ⓣ If a new socket is required in a separate building eg. a garage or workshop in the garden, the appropriate "access line" charges will apply.

Ⓣ Some of the telephones may be wallmounted. An extra charge will be made for the wall bracket (if required) and fitting.

Ⓣ For further details contact your local British Telecom Sales Office.
