DORIC

LOUDSPEAKING SYSTEM

New freedoms for telephone users

DORIC

LOUDSPEAKING SYSTEM

The 'Doric' is a new, neat instrument which gives the freedoms telephone users so often need at home, in the office, shop or factory.

Freedom to use both hands to do all those things which are awkward, if not impossible, with one. From writing a note to holding the baby.

Freedom to move your position without having to worry about talking directly into the microphone all the time.

Freedom to let others hear what the distant caller is saying a facility that will be as much appreciated on family calls as it will be valued in the office.

Compact, attractive, versatile

The 'Doric' Loudspeaking System is a versatile, compact unit with both loudspeaker and microphone built in. Its simple, attractive design is equally suited to home, office or any other use. It can sit alongside (in some cases underneath) a standard telephone it can be wall-mounted and it can be installed some distance from the handset to which it is connected. And, if you wish, you can have more than one 'Doric' on the same line.

Easy to use, clear speech

Modern technology is used to give new standards of clarity, in both reception and transmission, and, at the same time, to make the 'Doric' extremely easy to use.

Sensitive microphone

You can be clearly heard without having to speak close to it.

Voice-operated switching

Eliminates the annoying 'feedback' howls of conventional systems.

Noise limitation

Low-level background noise is automatically compensated for by an electronic device which prevents distortion.

Volume control

As simple as a home radio.

Privacy at will

When you don't want anything being said to be heard at the other end, you press a simple 'cut-out' switch. When you don't want your companions to hear what you are being told you can use the telephone handset normally, with the 'Doric' switched off.

Low cost

Added to all its other attractions – the 'Doric' is available at a significantly lower cost than many Loudspeaking Telephones currently available.
