Answering Machines

The Ambassador collection from British Telecom introduces a new concept in office communications. Modular in design, our range of telephones, answering/recording machines, callmakers and loudspeaking units offer the latest technology in neat attractive units — a winning combination which makes for an efficient office without sacrificing style.

Answering machines allow calls to be answered in your absence with a pre-recorded announcement advising callers when or where to contact you. Answering/recording machines also answer calls in your absence with the additional benefit of allowing callers to leave a message.

Eagle answering machine

The Eagle answers your telephone with a pre-recorded announcement when you are out or busy and advises callers when or where to contact you.

Your announcement is recorded onto a mini cassette — using an integral microphone — and can last for anything up to 60 seconds. By simply turning the cassette over, a different announcement can be recorded on the other side of the tape — thereby giving you a choice of announcements. Additional cassettes can be purchased which then allows you to build up a library of announcements to cover varying needs.

- Uses mini cassettes
- Cassettes can be used alternately on both sides
- A library of announcements can be built up
- Plug and socket termination.

Falcon answer/recording machine

As Eagle answering machine but with the following additional benefits: callers are invited to leave a message themselves after your opening announcement. You can collect information from clients, representatives or responses to advertising and allow friends and relatives to leave a message when you are away from the office or home. By pre-setting the Falcon in advance you can determine the length of time that callers have to leave messages: this varies between 30 seconds, one minute or 3 minutes.

These messages are recorded onto a separate message cassette which allows for a total recording time of approximately 30 minutes.

- Uses mini cassettes
- Cassettes can be played on a dictation machine
- Message length adjustable by user
- Messages can be erased quickly for security
- Plug and socket termination.
