Making the most of your BT Chargecard

Out and about

Whenever you're out and about, your BT Chargecard is always good to have around.

Your BT Chargecard at home and abroad

The BT Chargecard is a real favourite with people who travel abroad.

- You can use it to make a call from virtually any phone, anywhere, and have the call charged to your phone bill at home or work.
- It's especially handy when the payphone doesn't take coins, or you're right out of loose change. It's just what you need if you have to change arrangements suddenly.
- To make it even easier to keep in touch, you can put up to 9 numbers – the ones you phone most often – on a special 'speed dial'.
- It's easy to carry around and it can come in useful at any time.
- With the card in your pocket, you can make a call and you don't need to have lots of coins or local currency.
- The BT Chargecard can be used in over 120 countries worldwide, and you can dial direct from 29 countries.

Please note in some countries you may need a coin (which is generally refunded when calling from a payphone).

Keeping costs down

You can actually save money by using your BT Chargecard.

- It costs less to call from a BT public payphone using your card than if you use cash. Direct dialled calls will typically be 3-8% cheaper depending on the type of call you make.
- For example, a 5 minute national daytime call, direct dialled, will be £1.06 on your Chargecard compared to £1.10 with cash.

What happens if I've mislaidd my PIN?

Well, it does happen, doesn't it?

- Because of that, we've got a special 24 hour helpline to provide you with a new PIN if you've lost or forgotten yours – or simply want to change it.
- Call Freefone 0800 345 144 – anytime. Our friendly operators will do the rest.
- Of course, if you have a Contact card, you get connected automatically, so you don't need a PIN at all.
